

Mission Presbytery Guatemala Partnership

Many of us spend more for our morning coffee than a Guatemalan coffee worker earns in a whole day.

Workers tending coffee in plantations in Guatemala typically make about $3 per day and, from this, have to feed a family and keep a roof over their heads.

Help break the cycle in Central America and join with us to promote programs to help the poorest out of the poverty trap. Mission Presbytery works with CESSMAQ, a sister organization in the Guatemalan Presbyterian Church, to promote programs that make a real difference in the lives of many of our brothers and sisters in western Guatemala.

Find out about the Life Change microloan program and other ways you and your church can help the people of Guatemala at <http://www.cessmaq.org>.

Mission Presbytery Guatemala Partnership

Many of us spend more for our morning coffee than a Guatemalan coffee worker earns in a whole day.

Workers tending coffee in plantations in Guatemala typically make about $3 per day and, from this, have to feed a family and keep a roof over their heads.

Help break the cycle in Central America and join with us to promote programs to help the poorest out of the poverty trap. Mission Presbytery works with CESSMAQ, a sister organization in the Guatemalan Presbyterian Church, to promote programs that make a real difference in the lives of many of our brothers and sisters in western Guatemala.

Find out about the Life Change microloan program and other ways you and your church can help the people of Guatemala at <http://www.cessmaq.org>.

